

ABSTRACT

A method of offering customizable food comprising providing a base item; providing an array of additives compatible for combining with the base item, wherein addition of at least one additive from said array of additives to said base item alters a characteristic of the base item; and allowing a user to obtain the base item and at least one additive from the array, wherein the quantity of additives in said array of additives is a number greater than one.

10

60170542.doc